The GAWAD CES is a presidential award that recognizes members of the CES for exemplary performance and significant contributions, particularly in the areas of innovation, information and communication technology, social services, administrative reforms and public policy. 2nd Thought Leaders' Congress MORE FUN with Secretary Mon J!

Tourism Secretary “Mon J” Jimenez leveled up the fun in the recently held 2nd Thought Leaders’ Congress at the Diamond Hotel last 30 May 2012 with more than two hundred CESOs and third level eligibles from various government agencies.

In his keynote speech, Secretary Jimenez shared with the participants key tips on how to become a thought leader. He noted that while there are a million books that underscore the importance and need for thought leadership, these books do not show us how to become a thought leader. “He who controls the idea of men, control men”, noted Secretary Jimenez. “How do you come up with an original idea?” --- this question, according to Secretary Jimenez, is the core challenge of thought leadership. He encouraged the participants to pause and spend time thinking because “thought arises out of thought” and that the thinking exercise should be focused on allowing government leaders to draw upon their experience and knowledge of people. He further noted that thought leaders must endeavor to gain an insight into the team’s spirit to foster organizational success. A final ingredient of thought leadership according to him is the ability of leaders to heap praise to the members of the team and share words of encouragement rather than criticisms if they want to maintain productivity and commitment among the members of the team.

The afternoon session was revved up with an impromptu “Dance Again” number led by Health Assistant Secretary Eric Tayag, who later shared significant information on Universal Health as a reaction to the presentation on “Harnessing Public-Private Partnership (PPP) in Driving Governance and Development Reforms in the Health Sector: The NKTi Experience” delivered by NKTi Executive Director Aileen Riego-Javier. In her presentation, Dr. Reigo-Javier emphasized how collaborative cooperation between a government-owned corporation and a private corporation helped NKTi thrust towards what she believed is the country’s most important and precious natural resource and that is the health of the citizens.

The final learning session focused on “Harnessing Technologies, Partnerships and People Participation in Disaster Mitigation: An Assessment and Prospects for the Future” presented by PhilVocs’ Director, Dr. Renato U. Solidum, Jr. If Department of Tourism is marketing the slogan

“It’s More Fun in the Philippines”, PhilVocs on the other hand, through community involvement and utilization of practical and state-of-the-art technologies for disaster risk reduction programs, is pushing forth for an “It’s More Safe in the Philippines” hurrah.

In addition, the Congress conducted a special workshop to reformulate key provisions of the proposed CES Bill which was partaken by the participants who took interest on collaborating with fellow CESOs on rethinking and proposing revisions on vital components of the said bill.

The Congress was also made possible through the efforts and contributions of the National Union of Career Executive Service Officers (NUCESO) and the National Commission for Culture and the Arts (NCCA).

“Congratulations to CESB!” exclaimed by one thrilled participant. Truly, Thought Leader’ Congress. MORE FUN IN CESB!
