Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) Assistant Secretary for Administration, Human Resources and Legislative Affairs, Dr. Joan A. Lagunda led her team in responding to the CESB's call for COMPASSION amidst COVID-19. With her were Human Resources Development Service Director Ric G. Enriquez, CESO III, Administrative Service Director Rolando R. Castro, Division Chiefs Jane G. Bautista, Wilson E. Henson, Dexter Tindoc, and Engr. Guillermo Estipona, who brought 10 sacks of rice, and boxes of alcohol and disinfectant bleach to the Philippine Children's Medical Center (PCMC) on 28 April 2020. Aside from the donated goods, Asec. Lagunda also gave a cash donation amounting 100,000 pesos, which the hospital can use to defray expenses for their most urgent and critical needs. "In these trying times, the opportunity to share your blessings is much greater than ever and I want to share mine to PCMC because they are keeping the young ones healthy and hopefully safe from COVID 19", she said.

The PCMC is a tertiary hospital mandated to provide specialized health care for the children. The hospital's Executive Director Dr. Julius A. Lecciones thanked the DENR for the donation to PCMC, which is about to celebrate its 40th year on the following day, 29 April 2020. He said that the donation is very timely and is in sync with its anniversary tag line, "We care as one family".

The visit of DENR officials from the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Administration, Human Resources and Legislative Affairs (OASECAHRLA) also paved the way to further convergence as they offered to provide service vehicles for the PCMC frontline workers. Dr. Lecciones pointed out the need for these for our frontline workers who live in places afar from the route of the shuttle services.

ASec Lagunda cited that giving is part of DENR's culture. "We want the whole team to have a share in this undertaking," she said. Just a day before, she also gave food packages for DENR frontline workers including River Warriors, River Patrollers, security guards, janitors and drivers. According to her, one need not be rich or be in a leadership position to help. One can find fulfillment through genuine kindness and generosity. And by taking care of our children as the seeds of our society, we nurture a greener and healthier future generations.

UNITY STATEMENT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION (DepEd)

We, officials and personnel of the Department of Education, are one with the Filipino nation in the battle against the COVID-19 pandemic.

From our Central Office to our schools, we are committed to give our time and render our skills for the greater good of our nation. For the national to the local government units, and for the country's brave frontliners, we will support whole of government efforts towards healing our nation.

This is the purpose of Sulong EduKalidad – to move forward together as we prepare the education system for the future.

In this battle, our actions will be anchored on serving the public, and on ensuring that the health and safety of our learners, teachers, and personnel will be given priority in our policies.

We will approach this period of 'new normal' with patriotism, compassion and sensitivity, so that the process of learning will not be a burden for parents, our children and our teachers, but a ray of hope amidst the crisis. Despite the challenges along the way, we will ensure that we will strike the balance of offering quality education and caring for each other.

We are firmly committed to develop a comprehensive Learning Continuity Plan (LCP), which will address challenges through the necessary adjustments in the curriculum, alignment of learning materials, and relevant support to teachers and parents.

As we rally towards beating the unseen threat, we will be steadfast in delivering to the public only the truth and our selfless service, as we shun misinformation and division.

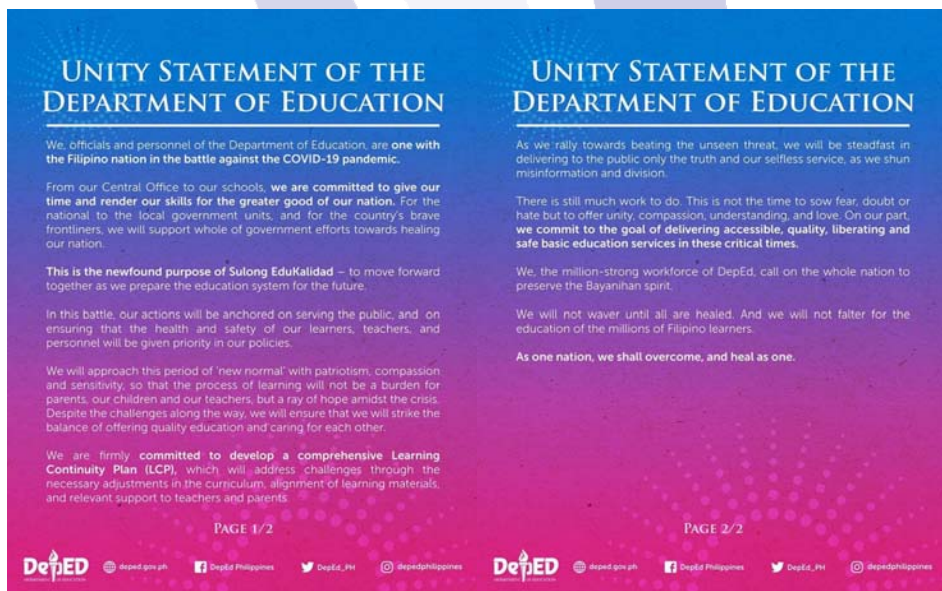

There is still much work to do. This is not the time to sow fear, doubt or hate but to offer unity, compassion, understanding, and love. On our part, we commit to the goal of delivering accessible, quality, liberating and safe basic education services in these critical times.

We, the million-strong workforce of DepEd, call on the whole nation to preserve the Bayanihan spirit.

We will not waver until all are healed. And we will not falter for the education of the millions of Filipino learners.

As one nation, we shall overcome, and heal as one.

A message of HOPE during the COVID-19 Pandemic

By: Nerissa M. Gerial, RN, MHA, PhD, CESE
Deputy Executive Director for Nursing Services
National Kidney and Transplant Institute

I can say that all of us in the nursing services were caught off-guard, not ready, and ill-prepared to face this pandemic concern. Although our nursing staff had dealt with many challenging situations in the past wherein, they had to be on high alert for deteriorating patients and those with severe infections, this one is very different. We are tasked to take care of very ill and contagious patients, which in turn threaten our very own health. Our health becomes at risk every day with one foot on the grave as we handle them. Yes, this new monster called COVID-19 is a different enemy. We are all afraid to be infected as well, for it could easily lead to death. In addition, we are also afraid for our loved ones, our parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, spouses, and even our children whom we could infect when we get home from work on a very tiring day.

The Filipino nurses, like the rest of the front liners, are aware of their chosen profession and the risk that goes with it, and we swore to do our pledge of taking care of the sick. That is why amidst this crisis, we remain to be in the forefront of the battlefield, with the armaments we needed to protect our very own selves like having complete standard PPEs while attending to all our patients. We hope that our present health care system would also take care of us, from diagnostic tests to treatment. We nursing front liners, who are exposed to COVID patients, should also be tested or swabbed when the need arises. This provides a solution to our anxiety and depression in the uncertainty of not knowing whether we got the infection or not, for we also fear bringing the disease home to our family. It is our appeal that the society whom we are serving would treat us with respect and sympathy, and not be treated as outcasts by being disease carriers. It is normal in this current situation to feel stressed however, let us be reminded that managing our psychosocial well-being during this time is as important as managing our physical health.

The nurses, along with the other front liners are unwavering in their service and we salute them for that. I'm sure that the Chief Nursing Officers of the private and government hospitals are implementing their own strategies to look out for the overall well-being of their respective nurses. As a step to ensure that the health and safety of our staff is prioritized, we see to it that they have ample time to rest in between duties and be ready again for their next shifts. We provide them food, arranged modes of transport for those who will report for duty and those who would like to go home, and provide a place to stay in the hospital for those who opted to stay and to those who are in quarantine.

We sincerely appreciate our empathetic citizens who have volunteered out of their own goodwill and sense of social responsibility in donating whatever they have to help, from the meals given, down to the PPEs in any form, and even prayers offered to us every day. These things help us realize that we are not alone in this battle; these things give us courage in the Nursing Services to continue in the fight of serving our Filipino patients in this COVID war until we win it.

As a government health care worker, I appreciate what the government, thru the Department of Health (DOH) is doing, that despite the limited resources and circumstances which caught us all by surprise, it has made great efforts to provide safety nets to its health workers including PPEs distributed to the different hospitals throughout the country. I really hope that there would be a sufficient amount of PPEs until this pandemic ends.

In the end, I strongly believe, we nurses, together with all the other health care workers and front liners, would stand proud — shouting out that we won the battle.

The Nursing Services, along with the Department of Health, is doing its part to ensure that the nurses, and the rest of the nursing staff, are being supported in every way possible. We acknowledge your hard work, dedication, and commitment to serve the Filipino people. We salute you for being brave, and for being our modern-day heroes. Mabuhay ang mga Filipino Nurses, Mabuhay ang mga FRONTLINERS!

CESBies Share Bread of Faith and Love

Our token of gratitude to the health workers at the Philippine Children's Medical Center (PCMC) headed by PCMC Executive Director Dr. Julius Lecciones, CESO III.

Prophet Elijah, at the time of drought and famine in Israel, was directed by God to go to the widow of Zarepath, who has nothing but a bit of oil and flour. Despite the scarcity, Elijah asked her to cook bread and promised her that she will have enough flour and oil until the end of the drought.

This is one of many bible stories that tell how the Lord thought us that bread, eases not only our hunger for food, but also hunger for faith and hope, at times of scarcity. This is also where the CESBies drew inspiration in distributing more than a thousand pieces of bread to frontline workers and offices during the Enhanced Community Quarantine.

CESBies drove around the metro to give pieces of bread to some frontline workers manning the checkpoints and random street vendors, the Bureau of Plant Industry,

Our token of gratitude to the health workers at the National Kidney and Transplant Institute (NKTI).

Meanwhile, the CESBies contributed an amount of their savings to help its support staff who are employed through a Janitorial agency and work on no-work-no-pay arrangement. They were able to gather PHP 38,500.00 in cash and pledge for the five (5) support services staff.

Like the promise He fulfilled to the woman of Zarepath, the Lord heal our land, but only if we heal, in love and faith, as one. 🇵🇭
